

Expert viewpoints: is CDAD a global problem?

“Well you know it is pretty much a Western problem. Japan has the problem but they don’t publicize it much. I’m aware of no good data out of China, India or any other places, although one of our investigators went to India recently and confirmed they were having cases” – US opinion leader

“I’ve done conferences and lecture tours and they [India and China] do see it. But they don’t see it as frequently as we do. As you know their testing methods are different from ours” – UK opinion leader

“I think this is a Western epidemic at this present time. But it is certainly going on in these other countries but not well documented” – US opinion leader

“I think that C.diff is a major problem in other countries that have a well developed healthcare system and in which broad spectrum antibiotic use is prevalent.” – US opinion leader
